

I came to Coady to review and reorientate my social involvement programmes, learn strategies for leadership and methodology, and to develop partnerships and networking.

SODARA (The Society for Developmental Education and Rural Action), India

I am involved with the empowerment of Dalits, tribals, landless poor, marginal farmers, rural women and children, and slum dwellers. We do this through non-formal and adult education, integrated community health programmes, self-help and credit union societies. We also support the campaign to secure human and constitutional rights for the 20 million Dalit Christians.

Sodara aims at the creation of a just and humane society in which the poorest sections of the society are enabled to secure human dignity, human rights, equal opportunities and social justice. We promote self-reliance, a happy family life and universal brotherhood/sisterhood. Sodara also addresses the socio-economic conditions that make the survival of the lowest strata most difficult due to globalisation and market forces.
