I feel very proud of being part of this organisation to bring change in the lives of the people, especially in the lives of the children who have no childhood and the excluded who have no smile on their face. We try to bring back smiles by empowering them. Many children and adults with our support and involvement have achieved great heights in life and become empowered to defend the cause of the excluded in the community. Some have even fought elections and become leaders.

Our organisation is committed to partnering with people for change. In the field of education, health and livelihood we have touched the lives of people in the states of Uttar Pradesh and Bihar in India. We are very proud to say that the people tell us what we do is unforgettable. Their thinking, understanding and approach towards life and one another has drastically changed.

Many children, women and socially excluded among the vulnerable section of the society have been partnering for development. Those who have gone through the process of rehabilitation have today become catalysts for change.
