Rhea Jeffrey

Welfare Officer

Citizens Welfare Division, Antigua and Barbuda

The Citizens Welfare Division is a government agency established to promote the social and psychological well-being of citizens in Antigua and Barbuda through empowerment-oriented services. The division provides professional and confidential services through social programs that include placement of children for their care and protection, social investigation reports for the Magistrate's Court, High Court and international social service agencies, and supervision of probationers and elderly care services.

My duties include child care and protection services, as well as preparing social investigation reports for the magistrate and high courts. I work with the police, carry out child protection interrogation and inquiries. I also prepare and maintain individual case files and liaise with other agencies on behalf of our clients.
