

I came to Coady to develop my communication and leadership skills in an effort to achieve maximum potential in performing my duties as assistant director of local government.

Blondelle Richardson

Assistant Director

Local Government, Antigua Barbuda

My role as assistant director is to ensure that the needs in the communities are met in a timely manner, and to organize town hall meetings so that persons can air their views and concerns. I also manage fundraising programmes and other projects.

The aim and objective for local government is to promote democracy and good governance, assist in building communities, doing minor maintenance of schools and clinics and other small community projects, removing them from the concentration of central government.
