

To be an effective and efficient leader I have to update myself and acquire creative and innovative leadership skills. I will explore new, rich learnings from the vast experiences of others at the global level.

Secretary and co-ordinator

The Bethany Society, India

The organisation focuses its attention on education, leadership training and empowerment of tribal communities through issue-based and rights-based approaches and promotion of traditional herbal medicine. There are eight supplementary classes in the tribal belts; English medium education for 65 tribal children in our school; children parliaments in order to prepare leaders at a young age. We run brick kiln classes at the migration or construction sites. We also have formed women self-help groups.

The organisation works for a just and humane society where compassionate love is manifested to the poor and vulnerable. We promote fullness of life to the tribal community, especially the Kathkari tribe, through our intervention. And we restore human dignity through the process of empowerment, education, appreciation and preservation of traditional culture and economic sustainability.
