

I came to Coady because I think if we have the desire to lead a group and create a real impact in our communities, it is important to never stop learning and sharing our knowledge with others.

The Millennials Movement, Peru

I do a lot of research in order to post useful information to our online platform. Currently we are partners of United Nations 'Millennium Campaign for My World' survey, so we have been working with a group of 213 volunteers in seven regions of Peru facilitating the survey and developing short workshops about the millennium development goals after 2015, and issues around civil action for development.

The Millennials Movement is a social media movement led by youth with a mandate to empower the community by the socialization of information about educational, job and volunteering opportunities. Those who benefit can then go back to their communities and apply the experiences and knowledge. We also support national and international initiatives that promote sustainable development and human dignity.
